

NEWS OF DAY AT SCOTSDALE BRIEFLY TOLD

Annexation of Swedestown
Would Add 22 Students to High School.

NOW GO TO ALVERTON HIGH

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, June 8.—Just what the annexation of Swedestown to the borough of Scottdale will mean to Scottdale is to be found from one item alone. Should Swedestown become a part of the borough there will be added to the school 22 high school students, alone who now attend the East Huntingdon High School at Alverton. Persons interested are making inquiries and getting more data to present at the adjourned meeting of council on Monday evening when annexation will again be considered. Missionary Meeting.

The Missionary Society of the Baptist Church held its regular meeting at the church last evening.

Wedding.
Seventy-five guests were present Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Hough to witness the wedding of their daughter, Marjorie Hough, to Clarence L. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Brown of near Scottdale. In a parlor filled with flowers the couple were married before an altar of exceptionally beautiful roses. Those in the procession were Mrs. Russell Hixon, sister of the bride who acted as maid of honor; Russell Hixon, as best man; Betty and Gail Hough, as flower girls, and Andrew Stoner as bearer of the ring. Before the ceremony "O Promise Me" was sung by Miss Della Hough, accompanied by Miss Margaret Kelschman, who also played the wedding march. The bride wore a golden bouquet of sweetheart roses. She was given away by her father. The service was read by Rev. Harry A. Price. After the wedding the party enjoyed a sumptuous dinner. The couple left on a short trip.

Appendicitis Operation.
Miss Helen Whaley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whaley of Everett, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Memorial Hospital at Mount Pleasant yesterday.

Wedding Date Named.
Miss Hazel R. Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kelley, has chosen Wednesday evening, June 20, as the time for her wedding to David H. Craig, son of Mrs. Jacob Craig. The wedding will be solemnized at 8 o'clock at the First Baptist Church with Rev. C. C. Rich of Warren, Ohio, a former pastor of the Baptist Church, performing the ceremony. Miss Kelley has chosen as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Margaret Kelley, and as her bridesmaids, Miss Florence Ruthford of Scottdale, Miss Betty Parr of Connellsville, Miss Effie Van Houten and Miss Mary Birkhart of Indiana. The best man will be Homer D. Hoffman of Greensburg. The wedding will be John Ferguson, Elmer Carroll, Edward Saylor and Ray Bight all of Scottdale.

Make Ready for Conference.

Piles

Can't Be Cured from the Outside.
Internal treatment is the only cure. No surgical operations. The cause is faulty blood circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins faulty. The bowel walls are weak, the parts cannot act. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must first get the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools.
J. S. Loughridge, M. D., sent at work some years ago to find a real internal cure. He succeeded. He named his prescription Piles Ointment, and used it in 1,000 cases before he was satisfied. Now Piles Ointment is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to use, and it's always found at Connellsville's Drug Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price if not satisfied. June—the month dedicated to Brides by convention, and to roses and the glory of all outdoor sports by Nature, brings a complete change in the life of every household—the family moves from indoor living to outdoor living.

There is also a decided change made in the dietary. Meats and heavy foods give way to vegetables, salads and ices. And this is just the time when there is great danger of running too low on energy foods—the daintiest and most "summery" of which is

Nucoa

The Energy Spread for Bread.

Just "standing the hot weather" takes energy. Every heart beat uses up energy. And every outdoor sport calls for increased energy. The energy we use in work and play is now accurately measured in calories, and all the energy we expend must be replaced in food calories—energy food.

Food scientists have figured that a man at moderate work uses up about 2500 calories a day. A housekeeper in light work uses about 2000 calories. That the ever active boy of twelve or so uses 1500. And that a football player uses up about 500 calories to the hour.

Nucoa supplies about 4000 calories to the pound, so is about the most economical energy food you can buy, and is so readily digested it is ideal for hot weather.

N. B. For a delicious picnic spread which the children will love—spread bread with Nucoa, sprinkle very lightly with sugar, roll and tie with ribbons.

Dairy Farmer Having The Largest Success

CLEVELAND, June 8.—The dairy farmer is enjoying greater prosperity than any other agriculturalist. In the opinion of breeders attending the 38th annual convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

"Iowa farmers have been in bad shape for four or five years, but the man who is milking cows has been in better shape than others," W. S. Harvey of Des Moines, for 12 years dairy commissioner of the state, declared. W. H. Mott, secretary of the Kansas Holstein-Friesian Association, said: "The dairy farmer is the only one getting by. In Kansas banks are quite willing to loan money to purchase dairy cattle," he said. "The business men of Indianapolis have just agreed to loan farmers money to buy 500 dairy cattle."

Out Goes All Rheumatic Poison

Rheumatics Acts on Kidneys, Liver and Bladder the Very First Day. Get a bottle of Rheuma today and get a satisfied smile on your face tomorrow. It's a remedy that is astonishing the whole country, and it's just as good for gout, sciatica, lumbago and kidney misery as for rheumatism. It drives the poisonous waste from the joints and muscles—that's the secret of Rheuma's success. But we don't ask you to take our word for it, go to Connellsville Drug Co. or any good druggist and get a bottle, and if it doesn't do as we promise get your money back. It will be there waiting for you—Advertisement.

Why They're Using Joint-Ease For Burning Feet

Just because it is now known that burning, sore, aching, swollen feet are caused by trouble in the many joints in the feet and ankles, and that Joint-Ease goes in and goes to the seat of the trouble and cures it.

And to think that for generations we have been suffering and making our feet ache, the trouble has only this day been discovered.

What is it like then never — just stop the pain and swelling in the feet. Buy a tube of Joint-Ease and rub it on your feet and ankles when standing and when going to bed. It will cure you. 25 cents a tube. Advertisement.

Four Hubbies, Not Five, Were Barbara La Marr's, Her Latest Says Angrily

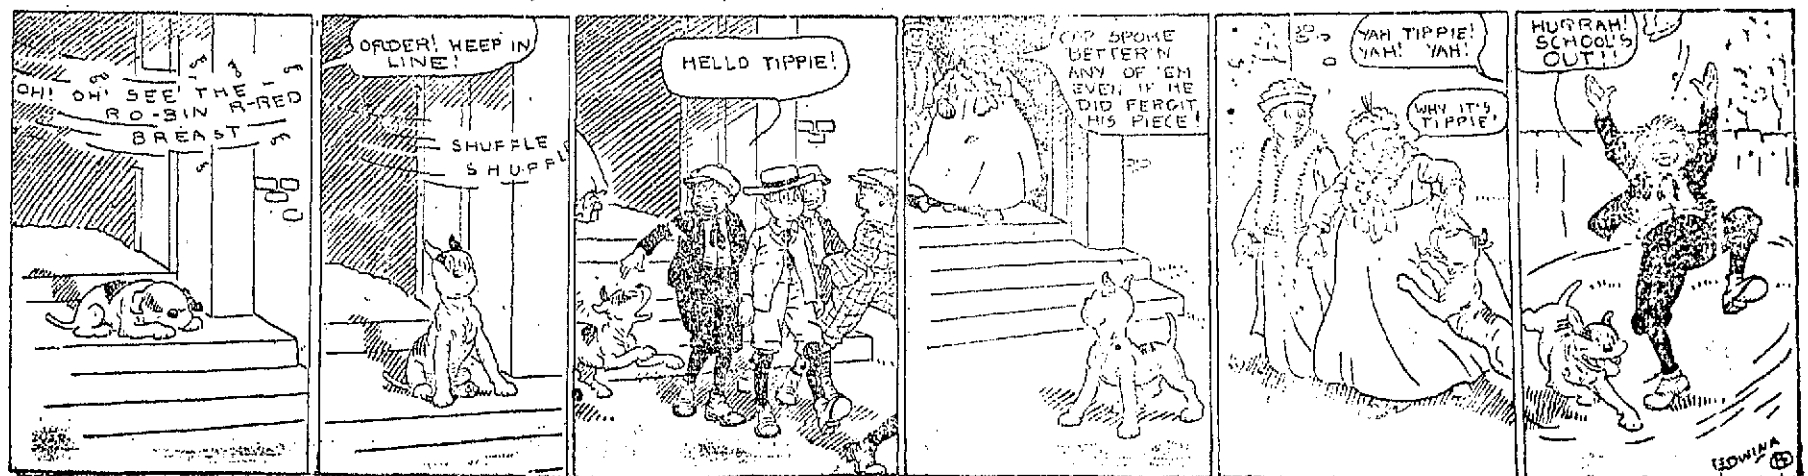

MR. AND MRS. JACK DOUGHERTY ABOUT TO SAIL FOR ITALY.

NEW YORK—"Four husbands, not five!" His brick-red topknot bristling with young husbandly rage, Jack Dougherty, newest husband of Barbara La Marr, threatened to smash to a jelly the nose of the editor who charged Barbara with five matrimonial experiments. "What difference does it make?" scolded the lovely Barbara, one of the screen's vaguest vamps. "You're the only hubby I've got now, and the only one I want."

So hostilities were averted. The newly wed couple are enroute, to Rome to film "The Eternal City."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

My children get tired of baked apples, but a real apple is always a treat. To prepare a good and safe apple, leaving the fruit whole. To one pint of water add two cents worth of red education drops. This will make enough for one quart in which to cook a whole apple. The fruit should be cleaned carefully so that all will be evenly colored.

Operators and Consumers Deadlocked

For three consecutive weeks, furnace coke has been quoted at a range of $5.00 to $5.25. Every day good furnace coke has been obtainable at $5.00, it being relatively unusual for a buyer to pay $5.25. Not infrequently a buyer has been asked, chiefly on the "Bridges" coke. ### ENGLISH METAPHYSICIAN PREDICTS END OF WORLD

P. L. Burson, English metaphysician, inventor, author, electrical and civil engineer, and a few other things, who is known in London as well as throughout this country, has staked his reputation on a statement that the world will come to an end in or soon after 1935. The world may manage to stick it out a few years beyond the time set, but even with everything in its mundane favor, it cannot last longer than 1935. That is the absolute limit, he says.

DIVORCES IN FRANCE DOUBLED SINCE WAR

Infidelity, Desertion and Lack of Moral Responsibility Given as Main Causes.

Divorces have doubled in France since the war, according to figures made public recently.

A general divorce law was first passed in France in 1884, and in that year there were 1,637 divorces. In 1913, the number of divorces were 15,372. In 1919, when the armies were being disbanded and people were free to put their houses in order, this number reached 19,463. In 1920 it reached 21,465, in 1921 the number was 29,198 and the last year 30,753.

The causes of this increase of divorces are not tabulated, due to the secrecy of court proceedings relating to family affairs.

However, the general causes are infidelity, desertion and the slow breaking up of the family during the war, with the greater freedom that has come to women who began to earn their living during the war. Both sexes, it is said, have lost in some measure their sense of moral responsibility.

Another cause given is nervousness growing out of the war, making both sexes less able to bear the restraints and trials of married life. Yet another cause is the tolerance of the courts and the ease with which divorces may be obtained, one factor of which is the cheapness of the decree, obtained through lawyers, who, in recent years, have begun to advertise: "Divorce in three months, on credit, and no payment unless decree obtained."

HATPIN IN LEG 16 YEARS

Found in Muscle of Veteran's Leg a Foot From Point of Entry.

A two and one-half-inch hatpin which had been imbedded for 16 years in the right leg of James Connolly, twenty-seven years old, a World War veteran of New York, was removed at a point 12 inches from where it had entered.

Connolly, who served for two years in France, had the pin jabbed into him as a youngster when he was ten years old. He was reluctant to say anything about it at the time, but as he grew older he became more and more perturbed over the location of the pin.

The pin was found with its point in the muscle of his leg just above the knee and about an inch below the surface. It had worked down at least a foot.

DOG'S VIGIL EARNS MEDAL

Watched Body of Playfellow Killed by Automobile.

Pink, a border owned by C. Gilbert Hartz of Reading, Pa., was given a medal by the Women's Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of Philadelphia, through Mrs. Madeline C. Vandervort, treasurer. The dog stood guard for more than 24 hours recently over the dead body of a companion canine killed by an auto on a Reading street.

The story of eight-year-old Pink devoted to a dead comrade is now being used in public and Sunday schools as an illustration of lessons in fidelity. After being taken away by his owner, Pink came back the next day and passed several hours, more of mourning at the scene of the accident.

STORAGE OF COAL DURING SUMMER MONTHS IS URGED

By Purchasing Agents, Fuel Distributor and Public Utility Associations.

LOWER PRICE UNLIKELY

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Federal Fuel Director J. R. Wadsworth, in a statement issued today, says: "The secretary of commerce, in two letters recently sent out to all national and state trade associations, requested their cooperation in the direction of advance storage of coal for winter consumption, that is, from now until September 1."

"The letter addressed to the National Association of Purchasing Agents, by the federal fuel distributor, read at their annual convention at Cleveland, May 18, urged upon the association as a body and on its individual members the storage of coal to capacity during the next three months so that the country may have on September 1, stocks of coal sufficiently large to assist the transportation interests in handling the greatest volume of traffic in their history, which they will in all probability be called upon to do this fall."

"In agreement with the recommendations, the association passed, among others, a resolution to the effect that 'The National Association of Purchasing Agents recommends to its members that they endeavor to purchase their annual coal requirements on contract calling for maximum deliveries during the summer months and minimum deliveries during the months of September, October and November or storing coal during the summer months.'"

"The three great public utility associations, acting on the recommendation of the federal fuel distributor, have also sent out letters to their individual members, recommending the purchase and storage of coal during the summer months while the railroads of the country, through their associations, have committed themselves to a program calling for their storage requirements to be completed by September 1, so that after that date the equipment and other facilities may be used to the greatest extent for commercial necessities."

"The American Railway Association and the Association of Railway Executives, as a part of their program for meeting the unprecedented demand for transportation facilities which now exists and promises to continue throughout the year, have recommended that the railroads complete their storage of coal by September 1 in order to make available the greatest possible supply of equipment at the time of greatest peak transportation demand in the fall months."

"The United States Chamber of Commerce, at the suggestion of the secretary of commerce, has recently issued a statement on the coal situation as of May 1, 1923, which, after reviewing the general coal and transportation situation, suggests the immediate purchase and storage of coal and that purchases, as far as possible, should be made through regular channels in order to avoid duplication of orders and prevent a runaway market. The suggestions are made to the business man and the household alike that they secure their winter coal during a period when it can be so handled and as in addition protection against transportation difficulties at a later date."

"Reports have been received which indicate that many consumers are delaying their purchases of coal in the belief that the work of the United States Coal Commission will result in reduction in prices."

"While one critic's recommendations based on an immature collection of data, will undoubtedly be made in the report of the United States Coal Commission, it is pointed out that no plan for action can be taken until some action is taken in December."

"Conceding the potential situation today and in view of the price reductions made by the secretary of commerce and the price national trade, it is impossible to see how the consumer with a timely purchase and foresight can avoid following the advice given that the winter supply of coal will be for domestic or industrial use in the purchase and stored during the summer months."

FEELS LIKE NEW MAN

Glad Friend Suggested That He Take Drego

Friendly suggestions sometimes cause a great deal of trouble. But in the case of Mr. Jacob Leichter of Connelville it caused a great deal of good.

"For 30 years I suffered from rheumatism," says Mr. Leichter. "Pains in my back and limbs made it impossible for me to work. The suffering was so intense that I could not sleep at night."

"A friend of mine who had suffered from rheumatism told me what Drego had done for him and suggested that I try it."

"It only took one bottle of this wonderful medicine to prove its worth. The pains in my back and limbs left me and I now feel better than I have in years."

DREGO is the pure liquid extract of many roots, herbs, barks and leaves which act on the vital organs of the human body. After taking DREGO it is noticed that the stomach is emptied and the gases, which accumulated, are expelled. The liver becomes active, relieving headaches and that dull tired, out-fading nervousness which induces sound sleep. The kidneys are strengthened, assist in increased blood flow and regularity and the whole system takes on a renewed vigor and vitality. DREGO is harmless, gives no taste and the effects are quickly felt.

Call today at the Connelville Drug Company. Ask them to tell you of the merits of this wonderful remedy. DREGO is the one medicine that will help you.—Advertisement.

Shake-Up in Connellsville Independent Team Creates Interest Among Supporters

Followers of the Team Anxious to See What New Team Can Do.

PLAY AT HOME TOMORROW

The shaking up in the Connellsville Independents has been the cause of much comment among fans. No adverse statements have been heard, the majority not desiring to criticize until the team has been seen in action on the field. The first game will be tomorrow afternoon with the Washington Field Club.

Another new face will be "Ike" Wilson of Fayette City, first baseman. He will replace Bloom. Bloom, who played left field for the Harrisburg Senators, has also been signed. Bloom did not do much with the stick here on Saturday. In four times at bat he failed to connect and on extra drive out a long fly. He may show more in a Connellsville uniform, however.

The team which plays here tomorrow is composed entirely of Italians. The outfit plays every day and is strong in all respects. Hahnke will be on hand to do manual work for the Cover-Harwin combination.

Of Interest to Fans.

C. H. Wine, who has coached Connellsville High School athletics for the past two years, has gone to Latrobe. There he will teach during the morning hours, have physical instruction during the afternoon and be assistant coach of the football and basketball teams. He has been succeeded here by Joseph Lerew of Gettysburg College.

Detroit, which team has been watching Harry Randolph, Dunbar township boy and Bethany College twirler for several seasons, has had him sign a contract and will probably place him with Greenfield, S. C., in once. "Tumble" won three and lost one game for his college this season. While another Bethany boy and twirling mate of Randolph, has also been signed by the Tigers and will report to the team at Philadelphia on Wednesday.

Danay LaPorte, another Bethany player and a local boy, has joined the Van Vorhes Independents of Morganstown, W. Va., for the summer.

Pittsburg and Brooklyn did not play yesterday on account of the rain. While the Cubs were resting, the Chicago Cubs were still reducing New York's lead in the National League, defeating the champs, 9-7. The McGraw clan, sporting under recent defeats at Chicago, plays in Pittsburg today.

The Philadelphia Americans also won yesterday, the New York Yankees at the same time being idle in Chicago when the game was called in the third on account of rain.

Jess Barnes and Earl Smith, a New York Giant battery, go to the Boston Braves for Hank Gowdy and John Watson. No cash is said to have been involved.

Connellsville fans are as much interested in the opening of the Giant-Pirate four-game series in Pittsburg today as are those right in Oakland. New York is leading the National League by six and one-half games and Pittsburg, as the runner-up, has a chance to cut this away down to its own advantage.

The first Church League baseball game is scheduled for this afternoon at 6 o'clock. The Lutherans and Methodists Protestants have been selected to open the season, followed by the United Brethren-United Presbyterian clash on next Tuesday.

The Perryopolis Independents will play the Belle Vernon All Stars at Perryopolis, Saturday afternoon.

STUDY HABITS OF AMERICAN FISH

Steps Taken to Ascertain Extent of Seasonal Movements.

TO TAG AND LIBERATE FISH

Any angler knows that the kinds of fish to be caught in the sea off New York in summer are different from those found there in the colder months of the year. The gentle southwest breezes of late springtime waft swarmed surface water from further south to New Jersey, Long Island and southern New England. With a higher water temperature these fish—haddock, bluefish, summer flounder, locally called fluke, and various other southern species, which migrate to us from greater or less distances and spend the summer off our shores.

Then in October and November, J. T. Nichols of the American Museum of Natural History, writes in the New York Sun, the cold, cold northwest wind sends the warm summer surface water drifting out to sea, and the temperature of the tide falls from week to week with that of the air. One by one the summer fishes find it too cold for comfort and go elsewhere. To take their place schools of cod now round the cape which bears their name, and this species, with others characteristic of the colder northern portions of the Atlantic, give us our winter fishing.

Mummy Fish Used as Bait

There are also certain common fish that can get along in a greater range of water temperature and that have no very apparent migration, but are present at all seasons. For instance, there is the little killifish, also called "mummy," much in use for bait. The blackfish or tautog is here the year round, but too sluggish to take the bait in the coldest weather, and bites most actively in the spring and fall. The winter flounder, also called flatfish, is also a permanent resident. It is caught in the spring and fall, for it seems to lose appetite in summer, when the largest individuals have also probably moved out into deeper water.

Such, briefly, is the character of the migration of marine fishes as it occurs not only near New York but in all parts of the sea where there is a considerable difference between summer temperature and winter temperatures.

These migrations are not necessarily of a simple north and south character, more or less directed to eastward or westward along shore by the trend of the coast. There are two other quite different types to which the movements of a given species may belong, or they may be a combination of all three.

Toadfish Present Only in Winter.

To illustrate a second type take the case of the angler, sometimes erroneously called toadfish. This is a large, sluggish fish with an enormous head and wide mouth with formidable teeth. It lies on the bottom in wait for smaller fishes and is said to lure them within reach by means of one or more peculiar flaps of skin at the summit of its head. This angler is absent from the shore waters near New York city in summer and present there in winter. It is present constantly in New England throughout the year, as also in deep water off New York city, from the depths outside to our bay is much less to actual distance than from New England would be. The angler is so sluggish a fish that one can scarcely conceive of its undertaking extensive travels and its migration is probably almost entirely up and down, from deep to shallow water, and vice versa. The movements of many fishes may be partly somewhat of this character, but how much it is impossible to say.

All Fish More or Less Migratory.

A good deal could be written about fish migration; of how the young of tropical species accompany jelly fishes and seaweeds drifting in the trend of the Gulf stream, and appear occasionally in late summer and fall hundreds of miles north of where they belong; of how schools of menhaden, not found north of South Carolina in winter, grow an annual trip of 700 or 800 sea miles each way for that fish; but whatever is known on this subject merely emphasizes what is not known. In our present state of knowledge, having eliminated every possible error from our deductions, those deductions become fragmentary and hazy in the extreme.

We have recently been informed that there is a movement on foot to tag and liberate codfish in the Atlantic, with a view to obtain definite information, when these fish are released, as to extent and direction of the travels of an individual fish. This method has yielded valuable results as applied to the salmon of the Pacific coast. It seems to have first been tried in 1901, when, then an assistant in the United States bureau of fisheries, I well remember holding the big slippery "killing" salmon as they were drawn from the water of the Columbia river while Prof. Charles W. Greene of the University of Missouri attached a small metal button, like those used to tag the ears of sheep, at one side of the base of the fish's tail.

Tagged Salmon Recaptured. On Oct. 10th this marked in one day, August 14, 1902, near the mouth of the river, 17 were recaptured and reported. Sixteen of them had traveled up to the Collio rapids, a distance of 210 miles. Five of these long distance fish were silver salmon. They made the trip in from 28 to 33 days after being tagged. The other two were steelhead. They went up the river in more leisurely fashion, not taking 35 days and the other 52 days.

The experimental tagging I refer to indicated that silver salmon and steelhead migrate at an average speed of from 8 to 12 miles a day, and probably move when wholly within fresh water. It also indicated that salmon probably subsist themselves to fresh water by swimming back and forth in tide water, before undertaking the migration upstream. The movements of the Pacific salmon in entering and ascending rivers of the coast to spawn are now rather well understood.

It is time to gather as much definite information as we may about the movements of migratory sea fish, for without such information their conservation, which is a problem of national importance, is badly handicapped.

GENTLEWOMEN SUFFER WANT

Widows of Once Prominent Germans Pawn Clothes for Food.

Thousands of German gentlewomen are now going through the tragedy which Russian women of the same class have suffered for several years. Widows of officers and government officials, women with small pensions and limited incomes from investments, find themselves unable to buy the plainest food.

A few days ago the aged widow of a once prominent physician and her invalid daughter were found almost dead from hunger in their home, which had been stripped of every valuable article.

In an effort to alleviate the condition of such persons and protect them from unscrupulous second-hand dealers, a number of philanthropic Berlin women have organized a fair, where second-hand articles may be offered for sale.

With German efficiency the members of the relief committee have provided tables behind which the sellers have chairs. They are mostly elderly women. Many of them are cripples, and almost without exception their worn and old-fashioned clothing indicates their gentle birth.

WARS ON SUMMER FURS

Blue Cross Society Hopes to Slash Slaughter of Animals.

War is declared against the fashion of summer fur in a circular issued by the American Blue Cross society, with headquarters in Springfield, Mass. The purpose of the campaign is to check the slaughter of fur-bearing animals.

The society is seeking the concerted support of social leaders and publicists to put summer fur in the discard. The same body will be remembered by its fight upon vivisection, calling for an "open-door policy" in experimental laboratories.

The "call to arms" reads in part: "Every right-minded person should protest against such monstrosities of fashion violating the laws of health and comfort, causing wastage that involves needless sacrifice of fur-bearing animals, and perverting every true sense of beauty and propriety."

TRICK NETS HIM $50,000

French Bank Clerks Robbed by Slight-of-Hand Artist.

Two Marseilles bank clerks were robbed of $50,000 by a clever ruse. They were paying in the money at the Bank of France, one man making out the paying-in slip while the other watched the package of money, which he had placed on the counter.

A stranger spoke to the latter, and pointing to two 50 franc notes on the floor, said: "Do these belong to you?" The clerk, thinking he must have dropped them, bent down to pick up the notes. At the same moment the stranger substituted for the package of money on the counter a parcel which, when it was opened, was found to contain old newspapers. By that time the obliging stranger had vanished.

CASABLANCA AWAITS TOURIST

French Complete Improvement of Port on Moroccan Coast.

The work of constructing a port at Casablanca, Morocco, undertaken by the French, is done.

Fifty large steamships today can find anchorage in the artificial lake created by the breakwater.

This development is part of the French program to enlarge Morocco, Tunis and Algiers as trade centers, and especially to attract tourists.

There are now good hotels at points of interest, and good roads. Fifteen years ago Casablanca had 20,000 inhabitants; today it counts 100,000.

GAVE $76,757,040 IN DECADE

Rockefeller Foundation Pledges Additional $15,000,000 to Health Projects.

The Rockefeller foundation, characterized by a special act of the New York legislature ten years ago, has expended a total of $76,757,040 during the first decade of its existence, according to an official statement.

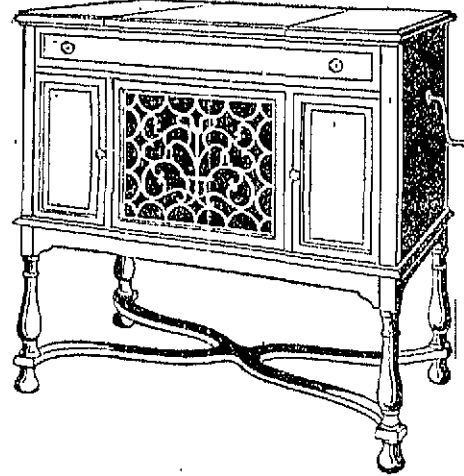

This sum represents all of the income of the fund and an additional $17,000,000 expended from the general fund or principal. A further sum of $13,000,000, payable in future years, has been pledged to various medical schools and public health projects.

High Turkish Dignitaries

In Turkey, the supreme head of the vicars or interpreters of the Koran, and the office next in importance and dignity to the grand vizier, was the grand mufti. He was the chief spiritual authority, and in that capacity called sheik-ul-Islam (lord of the faith). The grand mufti was chosen by the Sultan, who presented him with a vest of rich sables and granted him a salary of about $25 a day. He alone had the honor of kissing the Sultan's left shoulder, and enjoyed the special prerogative of riding him with the sword on his ascension to the throne.

No Other Way Out.

A banker many of whose clients had suffered from the deflation put great reliance in a certain tale as a clinching argument to crippled firms. It was about a man who was telling his son a bedtime story about an alligator. It was creeping up behind a turtle, with its mouth wide open. Finally it was within reach, but just as its great jaws were snapping shut, the turtle made a spring, ran up a tree, and escaped. "Why, father," said the boy, "how could a turtle climb a tree?" "By gosh," replied the father, "he

A New Edison For Your Home

PRESIDENT HARDING says: "We cannot have too much music; we need it—the world needs it—probably more than ever before, and I am the friend of every effort to give it its rightful place in our national life."

Better Homes Week, June 4th to 10th, is an ideal time for you to add a New Edison to your home. It will help you to foster the love of music in your children. It will help to fill each room with sunshine, cheer and comradeship. It is a thrifty home investment—a lasting pleasure that you can enjoy today and keep forever.

The New Edison is the closest approach to perfection in a phonograph that the world has ever known. It is the only instrument that dares to invite comparison with the living artist. Its tone is full, rich and deep. The new models that we are showing make it a distinctive piece of furniture as well.

Come in and let us further explain its merits.

LOAD OF BIRD SHOT IC HELP TO BARBER

Injury to Brooklyn Outfielder's
Forehead Greatly Improves Batting Eye.

Although it sounds paradoxical, a load of bird shot pumped into the body of Turner Barber, the outfielder obtained by Brooklyn from Chicago in trade, made the former a much better batsman.

From the character of the injury sustained one would think that Barber's playing would be impaired, but he insists that it worked just the opposite and points to the records to bear out the assertion. He batted .314 in 1921 and .309 last season.

The shooting, purely accidental, occurred in the woodland in the vicinity of the player's home at Milan, Tenn., two years ago. Barber was picking his way through some dense brushwood to get within aiming distance of a pheasant. Just as he popped his head up to discharge his musket, a fellow hunter, taking him for a deer, fired his shotgun, and Barber felt back bleeding profusely from four ugly wounds.

One place of shot lodged in the forehead, between the eyes, narrowly missing the optic nerve which would have caused total blindness. The other three lodged in the left side of the nose, the left hand near the thumb and in the calf of the right leg.

Barber dug the piece of shot out of his leg with a penknife and his family physician removed the piece from his hand. It was found unnecessary to extract the bullet from the forehead and nose and Barber is still carrying them around with him. He says he feared at first that the forehead wound would bother his vision, but instead it seemed to steady the nerves and his eyesight has improved. He claims that he gets a better view of the ball and has hit harder than before the accident. The player has suffered no ill effects since the shooting.

Coach Spike Webb

Spike Webb, boxing coach of the United States Naval Academy, which defeated the University of Pennsylvania for the Intercollegiate championship of America, after going through a season without a defeat. Webb coached the American Olympic team at Antwerp, Belgium, in 1920.

John McGraw Would Take
Ball Team to Far East

J. J. McGraw, manager of the world's champion New York Giants, has laid plans for taking a baseball team to Australia and New Zealand either late this year or in 1935. B. J. Kortland of Sydney, N. S. W. proposed such a trip to the Giant leader, who expressed enthusiasm at the project. It is probable that the team selected will also play in Japan, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands.

Willie Ritola Seeking
His Citizenship Papers

Willie Ritola, the famous runner of New York, came to the United States from Finland in 1911. He started running in 1912. He received his first citizenship papers a year ago, and should receive his final papers next April. He will then be eligible to carry the American flag in the Paris Olympic games.

Inside Baseball as Played by Orioles

"Inside baseball" has had a lot of publicity since the game took a firm foothold in the affections of the American public.

The Baltimore Orioles, the worder team that developed McGraw and Robinson and Jennings into the leading strategists of the present, thoroughly believed in the "inside" game, but a lot of their stuff looked like ordinary trickery to modern eyes.

For instance: The Giants were playing a closely contested game in Baltimore. In one of the late innings Hugley Jennings hit a sharp bouncer to Fly, the New York shortstop, who threw wildly to first base.

In those days the clubhouse of the old Union park grounds in Baltimore was situated directly behind first. Tom Murphy, the Baltimore groundskeeper, was watching the game at the open door.

He saw the ball come rolling toward him. He allowed it to roll into the locker room and then slammed the door and locked it. Roger Connor, the Giants' first baseman, swearing like a trooper, tried to tear the door down, while Jennings raved around the bases and scored the deciding run.

"That was inside ball," said McGraw, in recounting the story. "But just try to get away with anything like that in these times and see the days!"

Alexander Was Near Perfect Ball Game

Three perfect games have been pitched in modern history—by Charles Robertson, Addie Joss and old Cy Young, respectively. By a "perfect game" is meant one in which no opposing batter reaches first base in nine innings.

Which recalls an incident in the pitching life of Orver Alexander of the Cubs. Back in 1912, when a youngster with the Phillies, Alex faced Cy Young in one game. Young was in his final major league season, being connected with the Braves.

The battle was staged at Boston and Alex allowed one hit, Dot Miller, an outfielder, making a swinging bunt and beating it to first. He was the only Brave who reached the base after nine.

Alexander captured the game, 1 to 0, John Lobert making a hit off Young with a man on base in the ninth and driving the run home. But for that swinging bunt of Miller's, Grover Alexander might have been another pitcher in modern history to have a perfect game to his credit. And it would have been all the more unique because it would have been made against Young, himself one of the immortals.

CAPTAIN SAZARAC

He bowed again. He had feared... on the packet he had mortally not taken the trouble to ascertain which was the wife of the English officer. But now there came some surge of feeling he could not explain. He had been stung to folly, that was it—conscious of no other desire, tonight, save to confront Carr, fling an insult at him that no man might endure; challenge and kill him under the oaks of the Bayou St. John road. And now he was gazing on the fairest face that all his adventuring life had shown him. Perfect in the moonlight, the dark eyes cold, scornful; the arch of her white shoulders above the lace corsage—apparently Miss Lesron had been going to the opera of the Theater d'Orleans, where, he recalled, those de Vries appeared tonight in "Le Prophete." But the hour was late for this.

"I think, sir—you cannot see him. It happens—" She glanced up warily at the silent galleries where the colonel was mulling away ineffectually on his return. "Colonel Carr will not receive anyone tonight." She turned half from him with an air of dismissal. The stranger bowed once more. His heart was beating with a curious relief. It was plain that the girl did not know of the infamous fest with which all the coffee houses were ringing. He knew now he would pocket the insult; a duel was impossible, for it would drag her down deeper into the mire. Carr had guessed aright; Sazarac could not flout his wiles. In a private drinking bout Carr might roar with laughter at the gambler's dilemma; but, for the lady's sake, Sazarac would not challenge; nor would he permit talk of the affair to go about.

He drew his thin cloak closer as he turned to go. But as he reached the doorway with its dreary thicket of flowering water, he started at a cry that rang wildly through the courtyard, the scream of a negro, and a vengeful shout above.

Turning, he saw the girl in the court staring upward. Then her arms were flung out to appeal. And again that choked cry of a woman, but not in fear—impetuous, determined:

"Have done nothing, the girl! What—and you strike me?"

Leaping back to stare up, the visitor saw a woman crushed out over the iron lattice rail. The moonlight struck the quivering shoulder of Colonel Carr, who seemed bent on hurling her to the courtyard. The girl below cried out again hoarsely. And with a muttered Sazarac sprang just her up the curving staircase until he gained the third gallery.

The wife of the British colonel was choked and helpless against the railing as the stranger reached them. His hand was upon his sword, but with the other powerful arm he caught the man squarely by the collar, tore him away, flung him headlong against the wall—and then stood quietly, the girl's husband, glancing at the spectacle, Miss Lesron had followed past the cowering servant-girl bleeding on the staircase.

"Madame," she cried sharply, "are you hurt?"

"But for this gentleman, I had died," the wife answered, and then choked it with new scorn. Madame Carr stopped abruptly, her eyes upon the unknown gambler of the floor below.

"You," began the girl quietly, "the Captain Sazarac of the American Service. We must thank you, sir, even for this regrettable aid. Your presence the affair, without doubt—a private matter, of which we're content—as you are—gentleman—"

She had hesitated, her dark eyes on him, her lip quivering in the moonlight. A shudder on the gallery floor: the drunken man was getting unsteadily to his feet. He roared, grasped the railing, cleared his dazzled eyes, and stared.

"Sazarac—ah! Come then, Sazarac, the gambler! Eh—" he lurched forward, and held himself up. "Ho, the police—have this fellow thrown out who dares invade my privacy!"

"Honor!" the wife muttered, and then was still.

Monsieur Sazarac bowed to her quietly.

"What I have done, Madame—I am answerable for. The matter explains itself, doubtless. It shall not pass my lips."

"Sazarac—ruined me," panted the colonel. "A trickster follow—a sharp—or of the packet—ah, are you within your room, Madame?"

"You precede me, sir," she returned steadily, "you are in no condition to converse."

"Converse? Eh—Sazarac, here? I remember—" he lurched to the rail with hoarse laughter. "An appointment, eh—Captain Sazarac?"

"The matter is settled," commented the other quietly. "You will permit me to depart."

He was passing when the disheveled officer snatched to the narrow space between rail and wall. "He has come, my dear, to—ha, ha—perchance to claim his wager?"

"Not so soon, sir—Captain Sazarac—whoever you are. Ha—ha—it was a stroke—a coup—you will admit that, even if I lost, eh?"

Red-faced, leaving, he stumbled nearer, laughing loudly.

"You won't follow, you had the courtesy to show up, then?"

"Something in the cold eyes of the taller man stung through to his drunken brain. 'I will not fight you, eh? Is that what you are thinking? Of course not—of course not, Captain Sazarac! I—of His Majesty's Service, and you—not a gentleman in the city could touch for you!'"

"Colonel Carr," put in the girl steadily, "will you please?"

"You will excuse him, sir," Madame Carr turned to the stranger; and even in her disarray, he saw that she was maternally beautiful, but hollow-eyed as one torn by ceaseless anxiety. "He does not know of what he speaks."

"I can speak that, Madame, that would put all Louisiana in an uproar. Lashings, the consul, will open his eyes when—when—"

With a sudden furious movement Mrs. Carr closed his mouth. He threw her off violently. "Geeze this, Madame! I am not a child, or fool! Although about this crack-brained city the clouds are gathering! From the Sabine country the Spaniards—"

"He still!" She choked him with rising fury. In the moonlight her eyes held the glitter of a dagger. But this officer's drunken madness became uncontrollable.

"To your room, you women! Both of you! As for this man—" he turned again, staring abruptly at the tall, checked figure; for the three had forgotten that "Hub!" He is here he—"

"We know," put in the elder woman coldly, "he has ruined you at cards—everything. The consul has informed me of this humiliation beyond words."

"Case was laughing evilly again. 'Eh, well! The post-house gallants saw it all. Oh, ha!—there were wagers that Captain Sazarac would not even dare fling his face again at the gaming-houses. He would find pretexts, he would invent reasons—indeed it was a shabby trick to put upon—er—a packer gambler!'"

There was a silence. Madame Carr was staring at the stranger.

"What is this, sir? I heard some silly story of the cardrooms—Madame Carr would not explain, but there was comment, upon the promenade, today. Sir, as my husband but shouts, laughing, will you enlighten us?"

Monsieur Sazarac stood with folded arms. The girl in white was watching him doubtfully. Suddenly she came nearer. There was almost bleeding in her softness.

"Tell me. There was some cruel jest put upon you, sir?"

The stranger would not answer. Carr laughed hoarsely, flinging against the rail.

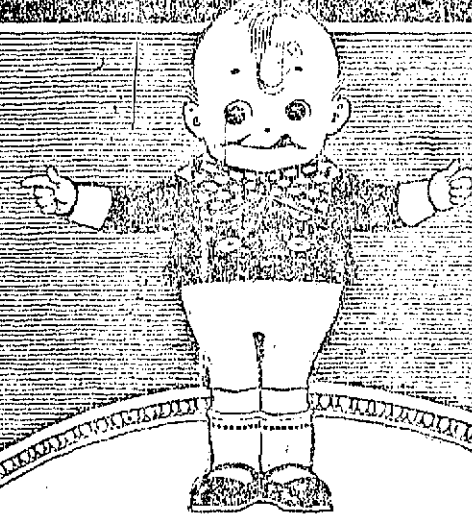

"The jest is this, ladies: Upon the packet tray, this man was all eyes for one of you. Chagrined that I would cardroom jest!" The stranger turned as if to escape from an unpleasant situation. But the elder woman suddenly came between them. "But what is this curious thing they whisper of along the promenade? I caught a laugh, a pitying look!"

She swept scornfully upon her husband. "Did you, then, cheat at the cards?"

"The affair is done," murmured the stranger. "Your pardon, Madame?"

But as he made to pass, Carr must give once more to him. "Your wager, sir? The prize you claim—which was it?"

The silence grew acute. The two women stared, unbelievably; the younger turned sideling eyes upon the silent stranger.

"He told you—that?"

"Nothing, Madame. Allow me to depart!"

"He meant not! A girl of San Domingo! Handled my name in the cardrooms!"

"You were not mentioned, Mademoiselle. I never knew your name before. You will allow me to go, Mademoiselle Lesron. It is enough—"

"It is not enough! You do not know all, sir." She turned swiftly to the drunken colonel and struck him sharply in the face. "You dared this! You infamous coward! I—a slave of San Domingo!"

Carr stood in an object sobbing. "Louise, this is folly!"

"I shall speak! Whom could you mean?"

"A jest! I said, a jest—not meant for anyone's ears but his and mine! He had the impudence to come here to claim something—" Carr settled back on the rail unsteadily.

"Something?" Miss Lesron turned to Sazarac. "Sir, and what?"
